Speaking Strategy

Talking about what you want to do

I'd like to + base verb

I like + v-ing

Examples:

- I like doing new things and I've never been skydiving before so I'd like to go skydiving.
- I'd like to go shopping this afternoon.
- I'm interested in history so I like going to museums when I visit a new house.
- I'd like to see the dolphins while I'm in Auckland, but it's quite expensive so I don't think I can.

Speaking strategy

Talking about change

To talk about changes, we often use (get, become ,comparative adjective)

- Temperatures above 30 are becoming more common.
- The weather is getting warmer.
- Summer is getting longer
- Winter is getting warmer

You can also use (more, less, fewer) with nouns to describe change

- There were more cyclones this year than last year.
- There was less snow this year.
- There are fewer forests.
- There is more rain in the winter
- There are fewer storms in the summer.
